Author Biography

Eliezer Wiesel was born September 30, 1928, in a small, predominantly Jewish village in Romania. The Nazis invaded Wiesel's village in 1944 when Wiesel was sixteen years old. Wiesel and his family, along with the other village residents, were rounded up and deported to Auschwitz. His parents and his younger sister ultimately perished in the camps.

After the liberation of the camps in 1945, Wiesel studied in Paris at the Sorbonne. He began writing for a French newspaper. A mentor encouraged him to write about his experiences in the camps, and thus he began his life's work. In 1958, he published his memoir Night (originally published in French, as La Nuit). He has since written over thirty books on the Holocaust.

New York has been home to Wiesel for several decades. In 1956, he was in a catastrophic auto accident, which left him confined to a wheelchair for a year. During this time, he decided to become a United States citizen and has since become a key figure in our country's remembrance of the Holocaust. He was chairman of the United States Holocaust Memorial Council from 1980 to 1986. He received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1986. He now serves as a Professor of Humanities at Boston University.

Book Summary

Background

The novel is a personal account of the author's horrendous experience as a young teenager in the ghetto and concentration camps of Buchenwald and Auschwitz. Remind your students that the author is writing this many years after his liberation from the camps. In fact, the Foreword by François Mauriac is a great place to start in introducing the author and the unusual circumstances surrounding the writing of the book. Although the account of the events which Wiesel saw and experienced is being remembered years later, it is clear from the graphic imagery of the novel that the emotional and physical pain that he experienced is engraved in his memory. The transformation from a teenager with a strong faith in God to one who has come to believe, like that of the philosopher Nietzsche, that “God is dead” is dealt with very poignantly in the novel and gives the reader the opportunity to explore his or her own faith or beliefs. The love and respect that Elie shows his father, in direct contrast with others who would fight their own loved ones for a piece of bread, encourages us to think about the principles and values we hold most dear, as well...
Night as how strong our convictions are when confronted with extreme hatred, intolerance, and cruelty. What makes us human, and how quickly can we lose that sense of humanity when following an ideology or a charismatic leader?

Novel Setting
The overall setting of the novel is the horrific concentration “work” camps in Europe during World War II. The author chooses to begin his autobiographical work at the start of 1941 in his home town of Sighet, Transylvania (modern day Romania), in order to show the sharp contrast between what life for a Jewish family was like prior to the war with its traditions, security, and overall belief in the goodness of people, and that extreme barbarism. The description of the brutal conditions within the concentration camps and the forced death marches experienced by the author completes the stark contrast between “home” and the concentration camp.
Below is a list of the major characters.

Eliezer (Elie): Elie is the narrator of Night. He is a Jewish boy of 12 at the end of 1941 and 15 when he enters the concentration camp.

Chlomo: Chlomo is Elie’s father who is respected by the entire Jewish community and by his son as well.

Moshe the Beadle: Moshe the Beadle is Elie’s teacher of Jewish mysticism.

Akiba Drumer: Akiba is a Jewish Holocaust victim who gradually loses his faith in God as a result of his experiences in the concentration camp.

Madame Schächter: Madame Schächter is a Jewish woman who is deported along with her ten-year-old son in the same cattle car as Elie.

Juliek: Juliek is a young musician whom Elie meets in Auschwitz.

Tibi and Yosi: Tibi and Yosi are two brothers with whom Elie becomes friendly in Buna.

Dr. Josef Mengele: Dr. Mengele is a cruel doctor who presides over the selection of arrivals at Auschwitz/Birkenau.

Idek: Idek is Elie’s Kapo at the electrical equipment warehouse in Buna.

Franek: Franek is Eliezer’s cruel foreman at Buna.

Rabbi Eliahou: Rabbi Eliahou is a devout Jewish prisoner whose son abandons him in the march to Gleiwitz.

Zalman: Zalman is one of Elie’s fellow prisoners.

Meir Katz: Meir Katz is Chlomo’s friend from Buna.

Stein: Stein is Elie’s relative from Antwerp, Belgium, whom he and his father encounter in Auschwitz.

Hilda: Hilda is Eliezer’s oldest sister.

Béa: Béa is Eliezer’s middle sister.

Tzipora: Tzipora is Eliezer’s youngest sister.
Synopsis

The novel Night by Elie Wiesel is unique in its perspective of the Holocaust. Wiesel recounts his actual experiences as a teenager suffering the extreme conditions in the concentration camps of World War II. Wiesel and his family endured both physical and emotional torture at the hands of Hitler's officers in the death camps. In the end, Elie witnesses the death of his family, as well as the death of his innocence.

Now it's time to start reading. Target on Text contains a section-by-section progression of activities to enhance your students' understanding and enjoyment of Night. This guide divides the novel into six sections of roughly the same length. Each section has individual section summaries, target objectives, and a variety of activities to highlight key story and literary elements.

While some of the activities are designed to be done individually, working with peers provides students with the opportunity to practice cooperation and creates richer results as the students build on one another's ideas.
Section 1 Summary

The first section gives the background of Elie's family and the leading role his father plays in the Jewish community and later in the ghetto. This section also describes how important Elie's faith is to him, as is his relationship to Moshe the Beadle. Moshe the Beadle is rounded up and expelled as a foreign Jew. He escapes and comes back to tell Elie of "his death" and to warn him that his family is in great danger; however, the Jews of Sighet do not believe Moshe and think that he has gone mad. The section ends with the Jews of Sighet being assigned to ghettos and later placed on trains to be transported to concentration camps which the Jews believe are "work camps."

Target Objectives

At the end of this section, students are able to:
• identify the key characters within the novel and their unique attributes, especially those of Elie and his father
• understand the importance of faith in Elie's life
• personally connect with the story through a specific event in section one
• identify various terms associated with hate during the Holocaust as well as identify hate groups in today's society

Plotting Through Memories
One Track at a Time…

By identifying the major events leading up to Elie’s arrival at Auschwitz, one begins to understand how so many people could have been led so easily to their deaths.

Directions: Review the major events of Section 1 and place them in chronological order in each of the boxes provided below.
“My Most Precious Possessions”

The Nazis permit Elie and his family to take only their most precious possessions or what they can carry to the ghetto. When the Nazis evacuate the Jewish families from the ghettos and force them to board the cattle cars for “work camps,” they again tell them to take only what they can carry. Elie does not mention what he and his family took to the ghetto or what they left behind to board the train for Auschwitz. By making a list of items that are precious to you, perhaps you can understand the conflict Elie had in choosing what he could take with him and what he must leave behind.

Directions: If you were in a similar situation and were told only to bring those items you could carry to the ghetto, what would you bring? Make a list of the items you would bring with you, but remember they must be items you can carry with you. You have little space in the ghetto and very little privacy.

My Most Precious Possessions:

2.
3.
4.
5.
6.

On a separate sheet of notebook paper, explain why you chose the items you did and how you would feel if you had to leave them in the ghetto.

After the war, it took Elie Wiesel 10 years of silence before he was able to write about the horror he had witnessed.
The Destructive Power of Hatred

A theme is a general concept or idea, such as love, justice, or sorrow. Hatred is definitely a powerful theme in the book. This activity helps you see the destructive power of hatred.

Directions: Use a dictionary to define below the hate words used during World War II and the Nazi regime.

Gestapo:

Scapegoat:

Genocide:

Anti-Semitism:

Nazi:

Holocaust:

Directions: Create a poster collage, which not only lists the words but also shows an example of each of these terms, either in pictures or by symbols. Use history books, news magazines, and the Internet to find the information you need to complete your collage. Put a title on your collage!
Discussion Questions: Section 1

Directions: Use the following questions to review what's happened in Section 1. Use these questions to generate discussions about the author's ideas and techniques.

1. How old is Elie at the end of 1941?
   Example: 12 years old.

2. Describe Elie’s family.
   Example: Elie’s father was educated, “cultured,” unemotional, and concerned with the well-being of Jews in Sighet; he is highly respected and often consulted for advice. His parents run a shop. Elie is the only son, but he has two older sisters, Hilda and Béa, and a younger sister, Tzipora, who is seven years old.

3. What is the metaphor used regarding finding “mystical truth”?
   Example: Choosing the right gate to enter into an orchard.

4. Explain how Moshe has changed.
   Example: He is sad, no longer sings, and no longer talks of God or the cabbala but only of his experiences after being deported.

5. What does Elie study by day and then by night?
   Example: By day the Talmud, by night the cabbala.

6. What bad news does Elie’s father have to tell the people of the ghetto communities?
   Example: The Jews of the ghetto are to be deported.

7. Who knocks on the blocked-up window where Elie’s family lives? Why does he knock on the window, and how does Elie find out later who it had been?
   Example: An inspector in the Hungarian police who is a friend of Elie’s father; he knocks to warn them of danger. Elie meets with him after the war.

8. Who does Elie first begin to hate?
   Example: The Hungarian police.

9. Who comes to offer refuge to Elie’s family? What is his father’s response?
   Example: Martha, their old servant. Elie’s father won’t hear of it, and they refuse to be separated.

10. Who is in charge of loading the deportees into the convoy of cattle wagons?
    Example: Hungarian police.
Section 2 Summary
This section details what Elie and his family experience during transport to a concentration camp. He says, “Lying down was out of the question…” The most significant event involves Madame Schächter and her son. She becomes hysterical in the “hermetically sealed” cattle car and begins to imagine that she sees fire and that they will all be burned alive. Eventually, others in the cattle car tie her up and gag her in order to keep her silent. The section ends with Elie and his family disembarking the train at Birkenau, a reception center for Auschwitz.

Section 3 Summary
The students should be prepared for the graphic detail of this chapter. It is in this section that the illusions of a “work camp” come to an abrupt end for the Jews coming off the trains. “Men to the left! Women to the right!” begins the ordeal that separates Elie from his mother and sister forever. Elie and his father lie about their ages in order to “pass inspection,” and for the first time, Elie becomes angry with God for allowing them to be in such a horrible place. Elie and the others in his line begin to move toward what they think will be their own crematorium and begin the solemn prayer of Kaddish. Elie realizes that the Nazis are throwing babies and children into the fiery pit and says, “Never shall I forget those moments which murdered my God and my soul and turned my dreams to dust.” Elie and his father do not enter the crematorium but are initiated instead into the hostile and meager existence of the concentration camp.

Target Objectives
At the end of this section, students are able to:
• identify foreshadowing and the effectiveness of such a literary device
• identify key events within the novel and understand the effects of those events on Elie’s beliefs
• identify similes and metaphors in the author’s style of writing and the importance of using such figurative language
• recognize the various types of conflict found throughout this section of the novel
• give voice to the silent victims of the Holocaust and, in doing so, connect personally with the events in the novel
• relate the Holocaust of the past to events occurring in the present

Foreshadowing: A Closer Look at Madame Schächter

Foreshadowing is the use of clues to suggest or hint at events that have not yet occurred. In Section 2 of the novel, an older lady, Madame Schächter, and her young son are separated from the rest of their family and forced to travel by cattle car to what they are told is a work camp.

Directions: Using the chart below, identify as many incidents of foreshadowing as possible, and speculate on what events are yet to come.

Ethics are the values or beliefs by which we live and make decisions every day. They are our sense of right and wrong, of what actions are commonly accepted and what are not. Consider Pastor Martin Niemoller’s words when speaking of the Holocaust:

In Germany they first came for the Communists, and I didn’t speak up because I wasn’t a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn’t speak up because I wasn’t a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn’t speak up because I wasn’t a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn’t speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me — and by that time no one was left to speak up.

What beliefs does Elie have? Through his eyes, we get to see the reality of what happened in the dark days of the Holocaust.

Directions: Based on the quotations below, determine what you believe to be Elie’s beliefs and values.

Similes and Metaphors: Describing the Unthinkable

A metaphor is a figure of speech used to compare two different things as though they were the same. An example would be, "My heart was a shattered mirror." A simile is also a figure of speech used to compare two things, but similes use "like" or "as." For example, "My love is like a red, red rose."

Directions: Use the examples below from Night, and decide if each is a simile or metaphor. Next, write what the vivid description means.

Without conflict in a story, the plot can seem boring. There are two types of conflict: internal and external conflict. Internal conflict is a struggle that a character has within himself. It may be a struggle to make a decision or to believe or not believe something. External conflict is when a character finds himself in a struggle with another character, society, an animal or even nature itself. We call these conflicts Man v. himself; Man v. Man; Man v. Society; Man v. Machine; Man v. Animal; and Man v. Nature. ("v." stands for "versus").

Directions: Using the chart below, decide whether the example given is an internal or external conflict. Next, determine what type of conflict it is; then, decide whether or not the conflict is resolved.

As Elie watches the wagonloads of children and adults being thrown into fiery pits, he feels that he has somehow walked into a nightmare and tries to pinch himself to wake up from the horror. The millions that were lost during the Holocaust did not get a chance to tell their story or to let anyone know their feelings during their sometimes short and at other times long ordeal. It is only the survivors that can speak to the world of their experience.

Directions: As a victim, write a letter to Adolf Hitler and the people of the world describing your experiences, denouncing the injustice done to you, and expressing your hopes for a better future. Speak as a victim of the Holocaust, not as a survivor but as one who lost his or her life. What would a victim say about his/her experience? How would the victim feel about the injustice of the Nazis to his/her family? What message would he/she say to the world, to the Nazis, to his/her family?

Discussion Questions: Sections 2–3

Directions: Use the following questions to review what’s happened in Sections 2–3. Use these questions to generate discussion about the author’s ideas and techniques.

Section 2
1. What are the conditions like inside the cattle wagons?
   Example: Very little air to sit, packed in tight with 80 people in a wagon, extreme thirst and heat, eventually doors are nailed shut.

2. Describe Madame Schächter’s situation.
   Example: She is 50 years old and is accompanied by her 10-year-old son. Her husband and two elder sons were deported with the first transport by mistake. She is emotionally distraught.

3. What is it that Madame Schächter thinks she sees?
   Example: Fire and smoke in a big furnace.

4. What is the effect of Madame Schächter’s screams on the passengers in the cattle wagon?
   Example: It is unnerving. They finally hit her to keep her quiet.

5. Why do you think Madame Schächter’s actions upset Elie so much?
   Example: Answers will vary. Elie is young and had never seen a grownup lose control like her or perhaps because her visions scare him since he had spent time with Moshe and heard of his experiences.

Section 3
1. How is it that Elie and his father survive the first selection off the train?
   Example: They lie about their age.

2. What is the most important goal for Elie as he enters into the camp?
   Example: To stay with his father.

3. What choice does each man have at Auschwitz?
   Example: To work or go to the furnace.

4. What advice does the Polish prisoner in charge of their barrack give before they are allowed to lie down in a bunk?
   Example: Help one another because it is the only way to survive.

5. Why do you think Elie lies to Stein about knowing about the welfare of his family?
   Example: Answers will vary. Probably to give him hope.
Section 4 Summary
Elie and his father march for four hours to another campsite known as Buna, and enter into what Elie describes as having “suffered an epidemic: empty and dead.” Buna is a work camp and Elie and his father work in a warehouse there. The meager rations, guards’ harsh treatment, and the long hours turn Elie into nothing but a body that is always thirsting and hungry. In this section Elie becomes less focused on his father and more focused on his own survival. Elie is whipped twenty-five times for leaving his post and embarrassing his Kapo. Elie meticulously details the shooting of a man who tried to get a drink of soup from a cauldron, and Elie admits that he along with the others was jealous that the man might have the soup before they had a turn. The hanging of the pipel in this section is of great significance, and many have interpreted it as an allusion to the crucifixion of Christ. The importance is the emotional response that Elie has to the hanging and the effect it has on his own faith.

Target Objectives
At the end of this section, students are able to:
• understand the importance that setting plays on the overall tone of a story
• write about a particular topic in a timed situation

Setting: A Major Effect on Tone

Setting can be used to create a specific tone for a story. The author, Elie Wiesel, uses setting to set a tone of depravity as well as horror and despair. Using carefully chosen words enhances the emotional impact you want your writing to have. Creating vivid images of a setting can evoke particular emotions in the reader.

Directions: After reading Section 4, circle the words in each quotation that contribute to the tone underlined after the phrase. Note that two of the tone words have been left blank for you to fill in.

1. “The camp looked as though it had suffered an epidemic: empty and dead.”
   Tone: Desolation

2. “I dragged myself to my corner. I ached all over. I felt a cool hand wiping my blood-stained forehead. It was the French girl. She gave me her mournful smile and slipped a bit of bread into my hand.”
   Tone: ______________________

3. “Suddenly...a man appeared crawling, like a worm in the direction of the cauldrons. Hundreds of eyes followed his movements. Hundreds of men crawled with him, scraping their knees with his on the gravel. Every heart trembled, but with envy above all. This man had dared.”
   Tone: Depravity

4. “But his (Oberkapo) little servant had been left behind in the camp in prison. Also put to torture, he too would not speak. Then the SS sentenced him to death, with two other prisoners who had been discovered with arms...all eyes were on the child. He was lividly pale, almost calm, biting his lips. The gallows threw its shadow over him...For more than half an hour he stayed there, struggling between life and death, dying in slow agony under our eyes...Behind me, I heard the same man asking: ‘Where is God now?’ And I heard a voice within me answer him: ‘Where is He? Here He is — He is hanging here on this gallows.’”

Timed Writing

The timed writing exercises give you practice in “thinking on your feet” and writing on a specific topic within a specified time frame. The practice helps you in preparing to take timed writing tests.

Directions: You have approximately 40 minutes to respond to the writing prompt below.

Prompt:
Respond to the hanging of the pipel. Discuss reasons why this particular experience so emotionally upsets Elie, who responds to the question of where God is with, “Where is He? Here He is — He is hanging here on this gallows.”
Discussion Questions: Section 4

Directions: Use the following questions to review what's happened in Section 4. Use these questions to generate discussions about the author's ideas and techniques.

1. What is Elie's first impression of the camp at Buna?
   Example: It looks like it had suffered an epidemic; empty and dead.

2. What kind of work do Elie and his father have to do in the camp?
   Example: Work in a warehouse for electrical equipment.

3. What happens to the Jewish dentist?
   Example: He is going to be hanged.

4. What part of Elie's body alone is aware of "the passage of time"?
   Example: His stomach.

5. Why does Idek beat Elie's father? What is Elie's first reaction as the beating is taking place?
   Example: Because he thinks Elie's father is being lazy. Elie doesn't move.

6. How does the dentist from Warsaw extract Elie's gold crown?
   Example: With a rusty spoon.

7. What is the punishment Idek gives Elie for leaving the area assigned to him to work?
   Example: He is whipped 25 times.

8. Who bombs the camp at Buna?
   Example: The Americans.

9. Why is the pipel hanged?
   Example: He is suspected of sabotage.

10. What makes the hanging of the pipel different from the other hangings the prisoners have witnessed?
    Example: Because the pipel suffers and is a child.
Section 5 Summary

The celebration of Rosh Hashanah begins to take on new meaning for the Jews within the camp, but Elie finds it hard for him to partake of the prayer. Instead, he begins to see himself as the accuser and God as the accused. He is no longer capable of lamentations but rather begins to feel strength in his hatred of God. Another inspection occurs, and Elie hopes that his father will survive it. Elie sees his old family friend, Akiba Drumer, for the last time. It is the last time Elie ever sees Akiba alive. Elie’s father passes the inspection and continues to stay with Elie. They both give each other the strength to survive. Elie goes through an excruciating surgery on his foot to relieve painful swelling. Word comes that the Russians are coming and that the prisoners must evacuate immediately. Elie makes the choice to be with his father rather than face what he thinks will surely be his own death if he stays in the infirmary. The men begin a long march in the cold and snow to another camp.

Target Objectives

At the end of this section, students are able to:

• identify key characters and events within the novel
• identify allusions and how they give greater meaning to the novel
• recognize cause and effect in the novel

Discussion Questions: Section 5 (1 class period)
Allusions and Meaning

An allusion is a reference to a well-known person, place, event, literary work, or work of art. Writers often include allusions in order to add deeper meaning to the subject about which they are writing. Night contains many allusions to the characters and events of the Old Testament because the experience of Elie and his family centers around the fact that they are Jewish and, therefore, singled out by Hitler and the Nazi party for extermination.

Directions: Comment on the allusions below and their purpose in adding meaning to Elie's experiences. You may need to research some names or events in order to have further knowledge of the allusions themselves.

<thead>
<tr>

<tr>
<td>“Here came the Rabbi, his back bent, his face shaved, his pack on his back. His mere presence among the deportees added a touch of unreality to the scene. It was like a passage from some book, from some historical novel about the captivity of Babylon or the Spanish Inquisition.”</td>

</table>
It is important to understand that for all events there is a cause and an effect. It is these causes and effects that propel a plot forward in a novel and help develop its structure.

Directions: Write either a “cause” for the effect given or an “effect” for the cause given.

1. Cause: François Mauriac meets Elie Wiesel in a chance interview in Tel Aviv.
   Effect: ___________________________________________________________

2. Cause: Moshe the Beadle is expelled from Sighet as a foreigner by Hungarian police.
   Effect: ___________________________________________________________

3. Cause: Moshe the Beadle tells Elie that he wants to come back to Sighet to tell the story of his death.
   Effect: ___________________________________________________________

4. Cause: Jewish men and women have no more illusions as to what will become of them.
   Effect: ___________________________________________________________

5. Cause: Jewish prisoners are stripped, shaved, tattooed, and continually beaten.
   Effect: ___________________________________________________________
This activity helps you personalize the story in order to help you empathize with the characters. Your goal is to respond to the journal topic as thoroughly as possible, so don't be concerned about spelling or punctuation at this time. The focus of this activity is on the honesty and depth of your response.

Directions: Please respond to the following topic. Remember to support your personal thoughts with examples from the novel.

Describe how you might have felt standing in a line waiting to see if you would be selected to die.
Discussion Questions: Section 5

Directions: Use the following questions to review what’s happened in Section 5. Use these questions to generate discussions about the author’s ideas and techniques.

1. What are Elie’s thoughts during the prayer being said for Rosh Hashanah?
   Example: That God is nothing and man is stronger.

2. What does Elie see and feel with his “eyes wide open”?
   Example: That he is alone without God, man, love or mercy.

3. According to the veterans of Buna, how has the camp changed in the past few years as far as conditions for the prisoners?
   Example: It is a paradise, it used to be much worse.

4. What do the prisoners fear more than anything in the camps?
   Example: Being selected for the crematorium.

5. What is the name of the SS doctor who is in charge of the “selection”?
   Example: Dr. Mengele, “The Angel of Death.”

6. What is the “inheritance” Elie’s father gives to him if he does not survive the second selection?
   Example: Knife and spoon.

7. What is ironic in the statement, “I’ve got more faith in Hitler than in anyone else. He’s the only one who’s kept his promises, all his promises, to the Jewish people”?
   Example: Faith (trust) is usually used in relation to God in a good way; whereas, the word faith is being applied to Hitler, a man of evil.

8. What is ironic about the choice Elie and his father make concerning staying in the hospital or evacuating with the others in his unit?
   Example: They think if they stay, they will be exterminated. Instead, those who have to stay are liberated. In trying to stay alive, they put themselves through further danger.

9. Why is the wooden floor of the block cleaned before they leave?
   Example: The guards want the Russians to think men were living there and not pigs.

10. What question is “hotly debated” regarding Yom Kippur — “The Day of Atonement”?
    Example: Should they fast?
Section 6 Summary

The icy cold wind blows incessantly on the ill-clad prisoners. Malnourished, freezing, and sick, they march in the snow without stopping. As the men fall from exhaustion, the Nazis shoot them. They march for hours, with many dying in the process. Elie and his father manage to stay together, but later Elie’s father awakens Elie to keep him from freezing to death when they stop for a short rest. Elie realizes the lack of humanity among the men as one son continues to run ahead rather than stop to help his father. As the men crowd into the gates of yet another concentration camp, Elie meets up with Juliek, the violinist, for the last time. Later, Juliek plays a fragment of a Beethoven concerto. In the morning, Juliek is dead, and his violin has been crushed. The section ends with the surviving men being loaded onto open cattle cars to be taken yet farther away to another concentration camp.

Section 7 Summary

The open cattle car in which the men are transported is unbearable. Some of the men actually freeze in the cattle car and are then thrown out into the snow every time the train stops. The men are given no food or water. They begin to eat the snow that collects on the backs of the men in front of them. Elie recalls an incident where German workers, amused by the near frozen Jews in the cattle cars throw a piece of bread into the car to watch the men fight over the small pieces of bread. A son actually fights his own father for the bread and is himself trampled to death by the other men trying to get the bread. The incident shows how badly the men have been traumatized by their experience in the concentration camps and are now acting like animals rather than human beings. An old friend, Meir Katz, acknowledges that he can no longer go on and wishes the German SS would just shoot them and get it over with. They arrive at Buchenwald.

Target Objectives

At the end of this section, students are able to:
• identify the ways in which some of the prisoners resist the depravity around them
• identify key events in the novel, and understand their general importance
• recognize major themes within the novel, and discuss the author’s purpose in writing the novel
• identify examples of vivid imagery and wording
• write snapshot images of their own life events

During the horror of the Holocaust, some prisoners found a way to show their resistance nonviolently. They somehow found an inner strength that helped see them through. The author gives the reader the impression that every man's fate is left to chance and that no actual act can keep anyone from death; however, we see many different ways in which the conditions of the camps give courage and strength to some and faint-heartedness to others.

What Would You Say?

If you were Elie’s friend during his experiences in the novel, what advice or support would you have given him? What would have been your reaction to some of the events he had to endure?

Directions: Write conversations between Elie and yourself using dialogue that includes proper punctuation. Be sure to stay true to Elie’s character. His actions or responses should be consistent with those of the novel. Remember that every time the speaker changes, you must indent and create a new line. The first dialogue format is done for you.

1. Situation: Idok beats Elie’s father with an iron rod for being lazy.

You: “

You: “

…you can add more….

2. Situation: Rabbi Eliahou asks about his son after their first rest stop in the march to the train station to Buchenwald.

3. Situation: Juliek is being slowly crushed by the crowd of prisoners entering the barracks to get out of the snow.
A theme is a central message or insight into life revealed through a literary work. It is a general statement about people or life in general. There are many themes within the novel Night about which the author makes general statements.

Directions: Complete the chart below by giving examples from the text to support the themes listed on the left. After giving examples to support the theme, write what you think may be an important “insight” about people or life in general.

The Plot Revisited: A Snapshot of Images

Just as a camera captures images through its lens, the novel Night is composed of a series of "snapshots" that allows the reader to see the experiences of Elie in his struggle to stay alive in the death camps. The author at times gives us the frame of an event but not the entire picture so that the reader must use his imagination to fill in the missing images. At other times the author retells the experiences in shocking detail, making us question how anyone could survive in such an inhumane environment.

Directions: Read the "snapshot" experiences below and underline examples of vivid imagery and wording.

“He collapsed. His fist still clenched around a small piece. He tried to carry it to his mouth. But the other one threw himself upon him and snatched it. The old man again whispered something, let out a rattle, and died amid the general indifference. His son searched him, took the bread and began to devour it. He was not able to get very far. Two men had seen and hurled themselves upon him. Others joined in. When they withdrew, next to me were two corpses, side by side, the father and the son.”

“The snow began to form a thick layer over our blankets. They brought us bread — the usual ration. We threw ourselves upon it. Someone had the idea of appeasing his thirst by eating the snow. Soon the others were imitating him. As we were not allowed to bend down, everyone took a spoon and ate the accumulated snow off his neighbor’s back. A mouthful of bread and a spoonful of snow. The SS who were watching laughed at the spectacle.”

“The head of our tent was a German. An assassin’s face, fleshy lips, hands like a wolf’s paws. He was so fat he could hardly move.”
Snapshot Writing

Snapshot writing is like capturing an image through a camera’s lens. The novel Night is a series of “snapshots” that allows the reader to see the experiences of Elie in his struggle to stay alive in the death camps. The author at times gives us the frame of an event but not the entire picture so that the reader must use his imagination to fill in the missing images. At other times the author retells the experiences in shocking detail.

Directions: Write your own snapshot image of an event that occurred in your own life. The criteria are listed below.

Criteria:
1. Snapshot image should be at least one full paragraph — five sentences or more.
2. Use vivid adjectives.
3. Use action verbs.
4. Include two or more of the following figurative devices:
   a) simile
   b) metaphor
   c) personification
5. Images should “capture” at least one of the five senses: sight, smell, sound, taste, or touch.

Other Criteria:
6. Check spelling.
7. Check sentence structure for run-ons and fragments.
8. Check for proper verb endings and subject-verb agreement.
9. Check for consistent verb tense.
10. Check for punctuation problems.
Discussion Questions: Sections 6–7

Directions: Use the following questions to review what's happened in Sections 6–7. Use these questions to generate discussion about the author's ideas and techniques.

Section 6

1. What are the overall conditions of the march to the next camp?
   - Example: Snows relentlessly, icy wind, prisoners are made to march in the winter storm for hours. If they stop, they will be shot, or they will freeze to death.

2. Why can't Zalman continue to march?
   - Example: He has a stomach cramp.

3. How does the presence of his father give Elie the strength to continue the march?
   - Example: Elie has switched roles — he now feels that his father will die if something happens to him.

4. Why is the violin so important to Juliek?
   - Example: Answers will vary: the violin is all that Juliek has left to remind him of better days: his once cultured youth or perhaps the beauty of mankind rather than its cruelty.

5. What is the importance of Juliek's playing of Beethoven's concerto?
   - Example: Answers will vary: it is a last act of defiance, it is his last reminder of the music he lived before he died, it is his gift to those who have survived and a tribute to those who have died.

6. To what does Elie refer when he says he sees the "strange overwhelming little corpse"?
   - Example: The crushed violin.

Section 7

1. Why does Elie say, "there was no more reason to live, no more reason to struggle" when he wakes up to a snow-covered open cattle car?
   - Example: At first, Elie thinks his father is dead.

2. Why does Elie, some years later, ask a lady not to throw money out to the poor?
   - Example: Because Elie understands the true life and death struggle that occurs when the coins are tossed and the "natives" dive in the to get them. It reminds him of the fight over the bread crumbs thrown into the cattle car to amuse the Germans.

3. How is the passage describing the fight over the piece of bread in the open cattle car one of both horror and sadness?
   - Example: Horror in that men can become so much like animals and sad because they have had to suffer to such extremes in order to be reduced to that primitive state.

4. What camp do Elie and his father end up going to?
   - Example: Buchenwald.
Section 8 Summary
At the camp, the men are exhausted and starving to death. Elie's father finally begins to collapse from exhaustion. For the first time, Elie thinks the unthinkable: that his father will now be a burden to him. Ashamed for thinking such a thing, Elie immediately gets his father some hot soup to drink. Elie's father becomes very sick with dysentery and is taken to the infirmary. Elie stays by his father's side as much as possible, to ensure he will be cared for. His father begins to complain that people are beating him for his water and bread rations, so Elie begins sleeping close to his father in the infirmary to make sure his father receives food and water. Elie's father dies in the night, but Elie is asleep when the body is taken away. He says, “I did not weep, and it pained me that I could not weep.”

Section 9 Summary
Buchenwald is liberated on April 11th. Allied forces are on the way, the SS officers begin mass exodus of the concentration camp. Elie is waiting for a transport to be taken to yet another concentration camp. The Nazis stop feeding the prisoners, and, for six days, Elie eats nothing but potato scraps and grass. The resistance movement begins to act, and the concentration camp is liberated. On his third day of freedom he contracts food poisoning. His last memory in the book is his first glimpse at himself in a mirror — “a corpse gazed back at me.” The look of his emaciated form has never left Elie Wiesel.

Discussion Questions: Sections 8–9 (1 class period)
Irony is a literary device that shows a contrast between appearance and reality, expectation and result, or meaning and intention. In verbal irony, words are purposely used to support the opposite in meaning. In dramatic irony, there is a difference between what the character thinks and what the reader or audience knows. In situational irony, an event occurs that is the opposite of what is expected.

Directions: Determine whether the passages below are examples of verbal, dramatic, or situational irony.

1. “I did not weep, and it pained me that I could not weep. But I had no more tears. And, in the depths of my being, in the recesses of my weakened conscience, could I have searched it, I might perhaps have found something like — free at last!”

   Type of irony:

2. “Saturday, the day of rest, was chosen for our expulsion.”

   Type of irony:

3. “The Germans were already in the town, the Fascists were already in power, the verdict had already been pronounced, yet the Jews of Sighet continued to smile.”

   Type of irony:

4. “We would be getting out here. There was a labor camp. Conditions were good. Families would not be split up. Only the young people would go to work in the factories. The old men and invalids would be kept occupied in the fields. The barometer of confidence soared. Here was a sudden release from the terrors of the previous nights. We gave thanks to God.”

   Type of irony:
Timed Writing

The timed writing exercises give you practice in “thinking on your feet” and writing on a specific topic within a specified timeframe. The practice helps you prepare to take timed writing tests.

Directions: You have approximately 40 minutes to respond to the writing prompt below.

Interview With the Author
Group Activity

The end of a reading experience can leave you feeling sad, satisfied, or curious. This activity gives you an opportunity to interact with the writer, Elie Wiesel. Be as creative, humorous, or serious as you like, but you must ask some fundamental questions regarding Night that only Wiesel could answer.

Directions: Write ten questions regarding the novel that you would like to ask Elie Wiesel. Use a separate piece of paper to do this assignment. After you write your questions, exchange papers with another student who will answer the questions.
Discussion Questions: Sections 8–9

Directions: Use the following questions to review what’s happened in Sections 8–9. Use these questions to generate discussion about the author’s ideas and techniques.

Section 8
1. Why is Elie angry with his father right after they disembark from the train at the camp? Example: Because his father seems to have given up the will to live; Elie is also afraid of losing his father.
2. What thoughts does Elie have concerning his father, and why does he feel ashamed? Example: He feels burdened and tired, and then he remembers Rabbi Eliahou’s son and feels ashamed for his moment of selfishness.
3. In what ways does Elie try to help his father while he is sick? Example: He brings him soup and water; he stays with him when he can, and he begins staying with him by pretending to be an invalid himself.
4. What happens to Elie’s father when he continues to ask for water? Example: His head is crushed by an officer.
5. What do you think Elie means when he says, “free at last” concerning his father’s death? Example: Answers will vary: Elie feels relief that he no longer has to worry about this father.

Section 9
1. How does Elie feel after the death of his father? Example: He is numb to the conditions of the camp; he doesn’t care about anything anymore.
2. Why are the Germans concerned with “liquidating” Buchenwald and evacuating the prisoners? Example: Answers will vary: perhaps they are ashamed and do not want the Allies to see how the prisoners have been treated; liquidation would get rid of the evidence of the horrors of the camps and any witnesses of atrocities; liquidation would quickly carry out Hitler’s order to annihilate the Jews.
3. What stops the final evacuation of prisoners from the camp? Example: The resistance movement.
4. What is the first act of the prisoners after the first Americans began arriving? Example: They throw themselves on the provisions.

Final Test—hand out and have students complete in class (1 class period)
Discussion Questions

Directions: Use the following questions to review what’s happened in the novel and to discuss ideas and themes.

1. What conflicts are introduced in the preface to the novel when Mauriac discusses his meeting with the young journalist, Elie Wiesel?
   Example: Internal conflict of Elie’s own loss of faith in God and in himself. Mauriac mentions the external conflict of actually seeing the children being herded as they are to trains forced by the Nazis, the internal conflict of whether or not each of us should get involved in situations that pose as a threat to others or just to ourselves, the internal conflict Elie had in writing his experiences as a novel that would be read around the world.

2. When Moshe tells Elie that he has “come to tell the story of his death” what changes have occurred in Moshe’s character since the beginning of the novel?
   Example: Moshe has become more of an outspoken prophet rather than a “loner” who studies the cabbala. He is not a “wise” but a very reality-based. Moshe used to have lost his faith, or at the very least he is not sure of the God he once knew. Moshe has “died to himself” and now sees no hope for the future for himself and, for the most part, all of humanity.

3. Why is the scene with Madame Schächter so emotionally moving to the reader?
   Example: Perhaps the image of a small boy clinging to his mother, the only security he has ever known and the reader knowing that Madame Schächter has lost all sense of emotional reserve even for her own son’s sake. Others may see the first real prophetic images of what is to come — the burning of bodies — as the first real reminder of how barbaric the camps really were. The idea that the other adults on the train have to subdue Madame Schächter in an effort to keep hold of their own sanity is a sobering image.

4. What images and thoughts from that first night at the concentration camp can Elie never forget?
   Example: The moments he suffers thinking that he is to be burned alive along with his father. The image of the babies being tossed into the fiery pits. The harsh reality of man’s inhumanity toward man for the first time. The question of why God allows such barbarity to take place.

5. The hanging of the pipel is an important turning point in the novel both in terms of the effect the hanging has on the prisoners and on the overall ideas that this pipel represents. Explain these effects in greater detail.
   Example: The pipel represents the innocence of man, the child who is in a wiser “innocent,” and, therefore, from the Christian perspective, could represent Christ on the cross surrounded on either side by the criminals or the “sinful.” In either case, the pipel represents the innocent and vulnerable in our society — the child. The idea of the prisoner that God would allow us to innocent to suffer as this pipel does (He is slowly strangling due to his weight) makes some question the justice, and in Elie’s case, the very existence of God.
6. What is ironic in the statement, "I've got more faith in Hitler than in anyone else. He's the only one who's kept his promises, all his promises, to the Jewish people"? What other examples are there of irony in the novel?
Example: It is ironic that the speaker trusts the mandates of Hitler, who has promised to annihilate the Jews, rather than in the teachings of his own faith. Usually one does not "trust" one's enemy but rather just the opposite. Other examples of irony will vary.

7. Explain the relationship between Elie and his father. Note the changes in their relationship as they endure the harshness of the camps.
Example: Elie and his father disagree on the faith Elie is going in his studies at the beginning of the book. There is an "aloof" relationship with the father, unlike the relationship that develops between Elie and Moshe. However, Elie is young and is instinctively driven to find a sense of security in being close to his father. In fact, if the only friend Elie has to enter the concentration camp for the very first time. Through the needs to stay close to his father and through the harsh treatment they endure together, they become inseparable. Elie depends on his father in the beginning of the novel; however, by the end of the novel when Elie's father becomes ill, the roles reverse, and it is Elie who must take care of his father. It is his father who begs his son not to leave his side.

8. Many have commented on the savagery shown by the Nazis in a supposed modern and civilized world. Judio's violin represents cultured civilization amidst the brutality of the camps. Comment on how the Nazis could justify their actions toward the Jewish people.
Example: It is a profound irony of the Holocaust that in trying to create the "master race" the Nazis in "getting rid" of undesirable and those with "defects," they themselves were tragically flawed by a lack of morality — a sense of humanity — that separates us from the common animal. The violin and the culture it represents was created in great part by the very people the Nazis were destroying. The Nazis could appreciate "culture" in the midst of their own barbarity.

9. How is the passage describing the fight over the piece of bread in the open cattle car one of both horror and sadness?
Example: Horror in that man can be made to grovel and act as an animal by the need to survive and sad in that the men on the train are treated with such lack of compassion. Some students may also mention the barbarity of the son towards his father over the piece of bread and the fact that they both die in the end.

10. In what ways is the relationship between Elie and his father both similar and different to that of Elie and God?
Example: Answers will vary. Elie is dependent on his father, but through the constant struggle to survive, Elie becomes less reliant on his father, almost seeing him as a burden at one point, but then feeling guilty, he returns to nurse his father in the end. The harshness of their existence, the struggles they go through brings Elie and his father close together. Elie is close to God BEFORE the struggles of the concentration camp. In the struggles continue, Elie loses his faith in God and focuses only on survival. Elie questions God like a child questions a parent in areas that do not seem rational, however, both Elie's father and Elie's God have no answers.

© 2005. Teacher's Discovery®
11. How does Elie change over the course of the novel? Example: Elie is a level headed young man who dreams of becoming a mystic of the cabbala, devoting his life to God. He has no doubt as to his belief in God. At the end of Elie’s experience in the camps, Elie is alone and does not believe in God. He is shaken to the core and has no idea what he will do and what he will become. He is the “corpse” in the mirror much like Moshe tells the “story of his death.”

12. McAfee Brown says, “It must be the prayer of our generation that with his [Elie Wiesel’s] help we can recapture enough of that reality so it will never be repeated.” Do you believe that the atrocities of the Holocaust will be repeated someday? Do you believe this novel can have that powerful of an impact? Explain your answer. Example: Answers will vary. Many students may point out that genocide has occurred since the Holocaust in other countries around the world. Others may give a very personal answer on how the novel has affected them.

13. What are the various images and thoughts associated with the word “night” and why do you think Wiesel chose this word for the title of his novel? Example: Many will mention the idea of darkness or the lack of “enlightenment” or “truth.” Others may want to express the terrors and the idea of the unknown that lie in darkness or in the night. Night may symbolically mean the “dying” of the day.

14. Give examples of the ways in which similes and metaphors are used and the overall effect their use has on the writing itself. Example: Answers will vary. The imagery of the fiery pits of the crematoriums is unusually graphic. The description of “death’s head” of the Nazi uniform helmets, etc.

15. One of the themes in the novel is faith. How does Shmuel Druzer’s personal faith in God and in himself change? How does Elie’s faith in God and himself change? Why does one choose to die and the other to live? Example: Druzer loses his faith in God and is left without even family to live for. He does not show anger, only a sense of inevitable defeat. He is tired, alone, and disillusioned. Elie is angry and is his anger, at God that gives him strength in the beginning. Elie is not alone nor is he in the last couple of months. He has his father and lives to help his father not lose his faith.

16. Explain at least two examples of both internal and external conflicts in the novel. Example: Answers will vary. Internal conflict: Elie and his relationship with his father when he becomes ill, Elie’s need to study the cabbala against his father’s wishes. External conflict: the Nazis, the Jews, prisoners against other prisoners (fighting for bread), etc.
Using your timeline of the history of the Holocaust, cite several examples where blatant disregard for human rights and personal liberties is ignored. Example: Answers will vary. Arrest of Jews without suspicion of criminal activity or evidence, the forcing of Jews to wear “the star” in order to be singled out in society as “different” and therefore not allowed the same opportunities and rights as other German citizens, the confiscation of property without due process, the arrest, detainment, and eventual annihilation of Jews without just cause, due process, etc., the use of cruel and unusual punishment to extract information.

Many people have wondered why the Jewish people went so “easily” to the concentration camps and did not fight back against their aggressors. Does the novel adequately answer the question of “resistance” among the Jews? Example: Answers will vary. Many students will cite example of the resistance movement at the end of the book that saved the lives of hundreds of children. Many will suggest that the atrocities being perpetrated against the Jews were so abhorrent that the stories seemed incredible. Many may cite information from research they did on resistance groups during the Holocaust. The general impression is that the Jewish people did not go “willingly” to their deaths, but were rather led blindly to their deaths so that they did not know the extreme barbarity of the Nazis until it was too late.

1. Describe the relationship between Elie and his father. How do the roles in their relationship change by the end of the novel?
2. Wiesel himself condemns apathy and indifference as the greatest of sins because stifled compassion produces a false sense of security and creates inaction against the kind of war crimes rampant in Hitler’s regime. Do you agree with this statement? Why or why not?
3. Elie is emotionally upset as he witnesses the death of the young pipel. The boy hangs from a rope slowly being strangled to death over the period of half an hour because he is so small. A prisoner behind Elie demands to know where God is, and Elie replies, “He is hanging here on this gallows.” What does this say about Elie’s internal conflict with his own spirituality?

Short Answer
1. Moshe the Beadle is a timid man who is very poor and a foreign Jew. He comes back to tell "of his death" in order to warn the people of Sighet.
2. He begins to hate the Hungarian police because they are the first to show brutality.
3. hot, miserable, cramped, very little air and no water or food
4. Because Elie is in a sense a child himself and to see an adult break down strips him of the confidence and security he had in adults.
5. to stay with his father
6. The pipel is hanged because his Oberkapo supposedly sabotaged an electric power station and a stock of arms. He is hanged through association. The pipel is very young and small and has a look of innocence. He is also not mean.
7. Because had they stayed in the camp they would have been liberated by the Russians, but instead in their efforts to stay alive, they must endure such severe hardships that Elie's father dies.
8. Answers will vary. The violin is a symbol of culture, of the advancements made in art and music. Because Jakob chooses to play Beethoven, it can be looked upon as a last act of rebellion as well since Beethoven was strictly forbidden.
9. Because Elie remembers the extreme desperation of the men in the cattle car, fighting over the one piece of bread.
10. He is numb. To Elie there is no longer any purpose. He functions in the camp as though he were an automaton with no emotion.

Essay
1. Elie and his father are not close at the beginning of the novel and are at odds on whether or not Elie should be allowed to study the cabbala; however, once in the ghetto and later as they enter Auschwitz, Elie clings to his father for support. By the end of their experience, the father has weakened and become ill and Elie switches roles with his father by taking care of him and protecting him from the other prisoners.
2. Answers will vary. Some will support the idea that there is never justification to fight back and that "neutrality" is a noble stance to take. Others will argue the point that it is our obligation to speak out and fight back wherever there is injustice.
3. Answers will vary. Elie struggles with the existence of God, but since he continues to pray throughout the account of his ordeal, the major conflict becomes one of evaluating the justice of God.

Handout 2

“My Most Precious Possessions”

The Nazis let Elie and his family take only their most special possessions or what they can carry to the ghetto. When the Nazis take the Jewish families from the ghettos and force them to board the cattle cars for “work camps,” they again tell them to take only what they can carry. Elie does not say what he and his family took to the ghetto or what they left behind to board the train for Auschwitz. By making a list of items that are special to you, perhaps you can understand the problem Elie had in choosing what he could take and what he must leave behind.

Directions: If you were in a similar situation and were told only to bring those things you could carry to the ghetto, what would you bring? Make a list of the items you would bring with you. Remember they must be things you can carry. You have little space in the ghetto and very little privacy.

My Most Precious Possessions:

2.

3.

4.

On a separate sheet of notebook paper, explain why you chose these items. How would you feel if you had to leave them in the ghetto?

After the war, it took Elie Wiesel 10 years of silence before he was able to write about the horror he had witnessed.

2. Conflict—hand out and have students complete in class (1 class period)
Foreshadowing is the use of clues to hint at events that have not yet happened. Using foreshadowing is a great way of creating suspense. It makes readers want to continue reading to find out what will happen next. In Section 2 of the novel, an older lady, Madame Schächter, and her young son are separated from the rest of their family. They are forced to travel by cattle car to what they are told is a work camp.

Directions: Using the chart below, list as many examples of foreshadowing as possible. In the second column, guess what events are yet to come.

Ethics: Evaluating Elie's Beliefs

Ethics are the values or beliefs by which we live and make decisions every day. They are our sense of right and wrong. It is our sense of what is acceptable behavior is what is not. Consider what Pastor Martin Niemoller’s said about the Holocaust:

In Germany they first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me – and by that time no one was left to speak up.

What beliefs does Elie have? Through his eyes, we get to see what happened in the dark days of the Holocaust.

Conflict

Without conflict in a story, the plot can seem boring. There are two types of conflict: internal and external conflict. Internal conflict is a struggle that a character has within himself/herself. It may be a struggle to make a decision. It may be a struggle to believe or not believe something. External conflict is when a character finds him/herself in a struggle with another character, society, machines, an animal or even nature itself. We call these conflicts Man v. himself; Man v. Man; Man v. Society; Man v. Machine; Man v. Animal; and Man v. Nature.

Directions: Using the chart below, decide whether the example given is an internal or external conflict. Next, decide what kind of conflict it is. Finally, decide whether or not the conflict is settled.

1. Setting: A Major Effect on Tone—hand out and have students complete in class (1 class period)
Setting: A Major Effect on Tone

Setting can be used to create a specific tone for a story. Tone is the attitude or feeling the author wants the reader to have in the words. For example, you can say the words "I will" with excitement, with anger, or with love in your voice. These attitudes or feelings behind the words is the tone. Look at the list of Tone Words list to help you understand how tone can be positive, neutral, or negative. The author, Elie Wiesel, describes the settings in Night using words that set a tone of horror and despair. Using carefully chosen words increases the emotional power of your writing. Creating specific images of a setting can cause readers to have particular feelings. This is what the author is trying to do by using tone.

Directions: After reading Section 4, circle the words in each quotation that shows the tone underlined after the phrase. Note that one of the tone words has been left blank for you to fill in.

1. "The camp looked as though it had suffered an epidemic: empty and dead."
   - Tone: Desolation

2. "I dragged myself to my corner. I ached all over. I felt a cool hand wiping my bloodstained forehead. It was the French girl. She gave me her mournful smile and slipped a bit of bread into my hand."
   - Tone: Compassion

3. "Also put to torture, he too would not speak. Then the SS sentenced him to death...all eyes were on the child. He was lividly pale, almost calm, biting his lips. The gallows threw its shadow over him...For more than half an hour he stayed there, struggling between life and death, dying in slow agony under our eyes...Behind me, I heard the same man asking: 'Where is God now?'"
   - Tone: ____________

In 1928, the year Elie Wiesel was born, the cost of a first-class stamp was ten cents.

2. Cause and Effect in Plot—hand out and have students complete in class
(1 class period)
It is important to understand that for all events there is a cause and an effect. To figure out what is a cause and its effect ask yourself, “What caused this event to happen?” Then ask, “What effect or consequence happened because of the event?”

It is these causes and effects that push a plot forward in a novel and help develop the overall plot.

Directions: Write either a “cause” for the effect given or an “effect” for the cause given.

1. Cause: Francois Mauriac meets Elie Wiesel in a chance interview in Tel Aviv.
   Effect: ____________________________________________________________

2. Cause: Moshe the Beadle tells Elie that he wants to come back to Sighet to tell the story of his death.
   Effect: ____________________________________________________________

3. Cause: Jewish men and women have no more false ideas as to what will become of them.
   Effect: ____________________________________________________________

4. Cause: Jewish prisoners are stripped, shaved, tattooed, and continually beaten.

1. A Novel With Many Themes—hand out and have students complete in class (1 class period)
Some Holocaust prisoners found ways to fight their horrors without violence. They were able to find an inner strength that helped get them through each day. The author gives the reader the idea that everyone’s fate is left to chance. However, we see many different ways that the camp conditions give courage and strength to some but not to others.

Directions: Consider the actions of the characters below. Choose one experience for each character. Decide whether or not he/she showed inner strength and in what he/she found strength or comfort. How did he/she resist the horror? Did he/she live or die?

1. Moshe the Beadle

A theme is a message about life the author shares through a piece of literature. The theme is not a summary of the plot. It is a statement about people or life in general. There are many themes within the novel Night about which the author makes general statements.

SECTION 8
1. Irony at Work—hand out and have students complete in class (1 class period)

SECTION 9
2. Themes Revisited—hand out and have students complete in class (1 class period)
Irony at Work

Irony is a literary element used by authors when they want to show that things are not always what they seem. There are three types of irony: verbal, dramatic, and situational. In verbal irony, words are used on purpose to suggest the opposite in meaning. For example, to say something is “rare” suggests it must be valuable, but the author may mean that the thing is “rare” because it was so worthless it has stopped being used. In dramatic irony, there is a difference between what the character thinks and what the reader or audience knows. For example, the reader often knows what is happening with the other characters while the characters don’t know what is happening to each other. In situational irony, an event occurs that is the opposite of what is expected. The twist endings in books and movies are good examples of situational irony.

Directions: Decide whether the passages below are examples of verbal, dramatic, or situational irony.

1. “Saturday, the day of rest, was chosen for our expulsion.”
   Type of irony:

2. “The Germans were already in the town, the Fascists were already in power, the verdict had already been pronounced, yet the Jews of Sighet continued to smile.”
   Type of irony:

3. “We would be getting out here. There was a labor camp. Conditions were good. Families would not be split up. Only the young people would go to work in the factories. The old men and invalids would be kept occupied in the fields. The barometer of confidence soared. Here was a sudden release from the terrors of the previous nights. We gave thanks to God.”
   Type of irony:
Now that you have finished the novel, what messages do you believe the author wants you to understand? Remember, a thematic statement is the topic (like humankind, faith, love, hope) and what the author is saying about it.

Directions: Write a thematic statement for each of the examples given below. First decide what the general theme/topic is, then decide what the author is trying to say about it through his characters’ words and actions. For this activity you have been given the theme/topic in parentheses. You are to write the “insight” or thematic statement.

1. “I was a body. Perhaps less than that even: a starved stomach.”
   “And I had but one desire – to eat.”
   “A piece fell into our wagon. I decided that I would not move. Anyway, I knew that I would never have the strength to fight with a dozen savage men!”
   Theme: (Humans turned into animals)

Finding the denotative and connotative meaning of words helps you identify the tone of a story and build your working vocabulary.

Directions: Using your list of vocabulary words, fill in the following boxes with the vocabulary word along with its denotative meaning and connotative meaning.
It is important to realize that there are many ways to express how we might feel about a person, object, or situation. This activity will give you an opportunity to not only express your feelings but also practice using the many forms of figurative language.

Directions: Create a poem using your choice of a character, object, or an event. Write your poem using the form below:

- Line 1 – one noun
- Line 2 – two adjectives
- Line 3 – three words ending in “ing”
- Line 4 – two similes
- Line 5 – one metaphor
- Line 6 – one action verb
- Line 7 – (your choice of endings)

Example:

Cattle Cars

Old and wooden Churning, creaking and moaning like the cries of an animal in pain and as hot as an oven
a sealed casket of the dead rolling along tracks of steel
Timed Writing

The timed writing exercises give you practice in “thinking on your feet” and writing on a specific topic within a specified time frame. The practice will help you in preparing to take timed writing tests.

Directions: You have approximately 40 minutes to respond to the writing prompt below.

Read the following passage from Section 2 of your reading. How does the author use figurative language, especially imagery to create a tone of despair?

And there was I, on the pavement, unable to make a move. Here came the Rabbi, his back bent, his face shaved, his pack on his back. His mere presence among the deportees added a touch of unreality to the scene. It was like a page torn from some story book from some historical novel about the captivity of Babylon or the Spanish Inquisition.

One by one they passed in front of me, teachers, friends, others, all those I had been afraid of, all those I once could have laughed at, all those I had lived with over the years. They went by, fallen, dragging their packs, dragging their lives, deserting their homes, the years of their childhood, cringing like beaten dogs.

...The street was like a market place that had suddenly been abandoned. Everything could be found there: suitcases, portfolios, briefcases, knives, plates, banknotes, papers, faded portraits. All those things that people had thought of taking with them, and which in the end they had left behind. They had lost all value.

Everywhere rooms lay open. Doors and windows gaped onto the emptiness. Everything was free for anyone, belonging to nobody. It was simply a matter of helping oneself. An open tomb.
Timed Writing

The timed writing exercises give you practice in “thinking on your feet” and writing on a specific topic within a specified timeframe. The practice will help you in preparing to take timed writing tests.

Directions: You have approximately 40 minutes to respond to the writing prompt. Read the excerpt below, and determine the tone of the piece. What figurative devices does the author use to create such a tone?

Prompt:
“So you see that chimney over there? See it? Do you see those flames? (Yes, we did see the flames.) Over there — that’s where you’re going to be taken. That’s your grave, over there. Haven’t you realized it yet? You dumb bastards, don’t you understand anything? You’re going to be burned. Frizzled away. Turned into ashes.”

Project Genocide: Images of Today
Creating a Scrapbook

The hatred and injustice imposed upon Jews and other groups that led to attempted genocide during the Holocaust may be over, but the practice of injustice and genocide for a variety of ethnic, political, and religious groups continues throughout the world today.

Directions: Research the Internet and in back issues of newspapers and news magazines to find out about other groups of people who have suffered from prejudice and intolerance since the Holocaust of World War II. Create a scrapbook of pictures, news headlines, and articles depicting these events. Be prepared to possibly share your scrapbook with your classmates at a later time.

Criteria:
1. Create a scrapbook out of construction paper or another source but not notebook paper.
2. Title your scrapbook, and include your name.
3. Each page of your scrapbook should include a title and short explanation of the event pictured.
4. You may focus on one event or on several examples around the world. Be sure to title each page and explain the picture, news article or other piece of evidence for your scrapbook page.
5. Have at least 10 pages in your scrapbook.
6. Include a first or last page that states your feelings regarding what you learned during your research and how you feel about intolerance toward others in general.

Important
• Watch your spelling!
• Watch your sentence writing; use no fragments or run-ons.
• Watch capitalization.
• Be neat when placing pictures, samples, Internet sources, articles, etc., in the scrapbook.
• Type titles and short explanations and your personal feelings about intolerance, if possible. Otherwise, write very NEATLY.

Personification is the literary term used to describe the process of giving human characteristics to objects, animals, or ideas. For example, the "tree weeping" and "Death's knock on your door" are both examples of personification. The use of personification can have an important effect on the tone and mood of an event.

A theme is a general concept or idea, such as love, justice, or sorrow. One way to help you think of themes is to complete the following sentence: “This is a book about ________.”

By this point in a story, it’s likely that the author has introduced most, if not all, of the themes he or she wishes to depict. Some themes are not well developed yet, but there are clues as to what they are. This activity starts you thinking about the broader ideas the author wants you to discuss. Working as a class and with a partner helps you increase the number of ideas you have.

Directions:

As a class, think of as many potential themes as you can and write them on the board. Then, support one theme in more depth and present to the class.

Possible Themes

In the box below, write down all of the themes you think of as a class.

Evidence for a Theme

Choose one theme from the box above. With a partner, go back to the book and look for characters and events that demonstrate the theme.

1. I am finding evidence for the theme of _____________.

2. Here are three examples of this theme in the book (be sure to include page numbers):
   a) ____________
   b) ____________
   c) ____________
4. Plot Analysis: Rising Action—hand out and have students complete in class (1 class period)
5. Literary Devices—hand out and have students complete in class (45 minutes)
Plot Analysis: Rising Action

Group Activity

Plot is the series of events that make up the story. The rising action is simply the progression of events and conflicts that make the story more interesting. Once the author introduces the characters, the story really gets going. Major conflicts and problems begin to occur. At this point, you're familiar with most of the issues in the story. Together with a partner, create a visual representation of the plot structure thus far according to the instructions below. This activity will help you conceptualize the elements of the plot and apply these terms to the story. It also helps you separate major plot points from minor episodes.

Directions:
Decide with your partner which five events are the most important in the storyline thus far. Write a brief summary of each one below (be sure to include the page number).

2.
3.
4.
5.

Draw the Plot
Make a poster that illustrates the plot action up to this point. The basic plot diagram is shown below. Explain and label the five rising action events described above. Mark the climax point and resolution line; you'll fill these in later. Be as creative as you wish in designing and decorating your poster. Make it eye-catching.

Directions: You have approximately 40 minutes to respond to the writing prompt below.

Prompt:
Free Response. (Write for 40 minutes on any aspect of the novel you would like.)
This activity will help you personalize the story in order to help you empathize with the characters. Your goal is to respond to the journal topic as thoroughly as possible, so don’t be concerned about spelling or punctuation at this time. The focus of this activity is on the honesty and depth of your response.

Directions: Please respond to the following topic. Remember to support your personal thoughts with examples from the novel.

Comment on how Elie and his father rely on each other to survive the brutal march.
Maslow’s Hierarchy of Needs and the Death Camps

- PHYSIOLOGICAL NEEDS (Air, water, food, and sleep)
- SAFETY (Stability and consistency in one’s life, an absence of fear or a threat)
- LOVE (A sense of belonging and acceptance from others)
- SELF-ESTEEM (Confidence in oneself, recognition from others)
- SELF-ACTUALIZATION (Self-fulfillment, knowledge, peace, spiritual growth, a desire to become all that you can be)
Maslow’s Hierarchy of Needs

Abraham Maslow is known for establishing a theory that explains man’s needs and his potential for self-fulfillment. According to Maslow, an individual cannot rise to the next level on the hierarchy until he has acquired what is needed in the level below it. One cannot, for instance, feel safe and out of danger if food or water is not readily available to him. Maslow believes that human violence is a result of a person’s inability to acquire the basic needs in the first three levels of the hierarchy.

Directions: Using Maslow’s hierarchy, and answer the questions below.

1. Why do the prisoners in the cattle car fight over a piece of bread in Section 7?

2. Why does Elie continue to have trouble sustaining his religious faith?

3. Why do the Nazi guards continue to abuse the prisoners?

4. Why is it so important for Elie to stay close to his father?

5. Explain Madame Schächter’s behavior in the cattle car?

Diction means word choice. The choices we make concerning what words to use in our writing create tone. Tone is the author's feelings concerning his/her topic. Can an author switch the tone or attitude in the story? Yes. We call that change in attitude a shift. Shift simply means change. Are there other types of shift in literature? Yes, there are shifts in point of view, setting and speakers. For this activity, we are going to focus on the use of diction to create tone and identify where there are shifts in tone.

Directions: Read the passages below, and circle the specific words the author uses to create his tone. Identify the tone. If there is a shift in tone, draw a vertical line that shows where the shift takes place and identify the tone. If there is no shift in tone, write "none" on the second blank line.

1. "The camp looked as though it had suffered an epidemic: empty and dead. There were just a few well-clad prisoners walking about between the blocks. Of course, we had to go through the showers first. The head of the camp joined us there. He was a strong, well-built, broad-shouldered man: bull neck, thick lips, frizzled hair. He looked kind. A smile shone from time to time in his gray-blue eyes."

   Tone

2. "‘Father’, I said. ‘Only another moment more. Soon we can lie down—in a bed. You can rest...’ He did not answer. I was so exhausted myself that his silence left me indifferent. My only wish was to take a bath as quickly as possible and lie down in a bed.

   ‘...I can’t go on... This is the end... I’m going to die here...’ ‘Father!’ I screamed. ‘Father! Get up from here! Immediately! You’re killing yourself...’ I showed him the corpses all around him; they too had wanted to rest here."

3. “Besides, this doctor had only come to finish off the sick. I could hear him shouting at them that they were lazy and just wanted to stay in bed. I felt like leaping at his throat, strangling him. But I no longer had the courage or the strength. I was riveted to my father’s deathbed. My hands hurt, I was clenching them so hard. Oh, to strangle the doctor and the others! To burn the whole world! My father’s murderers! But the cry stayed in my throat.”

Creating Book Marks

Directions: Using information and quotations from the novel, create three bookmarks that students could use when reading Night. Be sure to show your creativity by adding designs, symbols, pictures, and color to your bookmarks.
Using the Five Senses
for Your Own Thoughts

Directions: Using the five senses, write a one-page paper describing your thoughts regarding an event or several events within the novel. Ask yourself the following questions:

What did the event(s) look like?
What could you imagine the event(s) sounding like?
What could you smell around you?
What did it taste like?
What did it feel like?

Criteria:
1. Uses all five senses in your writing.
2. Is at least one-page in length.
3. Is an accurate description of the event or events.
4. Contains no spelling errors.
5. Contains no grammar errors.
6. Contains no punctuation errors.
7. Contains no capitalization errors.
8. Uses figurative language to help describe the five senses i.e., personification, metaphor, simile.
By creating a PowerPoint presentation you have the opportunity to use technology with color and sound to show how various literary devices really can make words come to life and give greater meaning to the novel overall.

Directions: Produce a PowerPoint slide show presentation which "shows" how various types of literary device are used in the novel. Please include one slide for each of the literary devices listed below:

a. Title
b. A word about the importance of literary devices
c. Simile defined
d. Example of a simile in the novel
e. Foreshadowing defined
f. Example of foreshadowing in the novel
g. Rhetorical questioning defined
h. Example of rhetorical questioning in the novel
i. Symbolism defined
j. Example of symbolism in the novel
k. Dialogue defined
l. Example of dialogue defined

Show how each of these literary devices is used to create meaning in the novel. Use examples from the novel itself.
4. Expository Writing Topics—hand out and have students complete in class (3 class periods)
5. Life-Sized Character Posters—hand out and have students complete in class (3 class periods)
Expository Writing Topics

Expository writing is one method that allows students to synthesize what they have learned after studying a novel. It requires students to take a broader look at a theme or idea throughout the book, develop a thesis that argues their personal viewpoint, and use evidence from the text to support their claims. Below are two topics to assign to your students.

1. The author uses many symbols throughout the novel. Choose two and explain what they represent, and provide an evaluation of their usefulness in the story. Did the author choose the best ones possible? Would another symbol have been better? Why?

2. Trace one theme, such as good vs. evil or human nature, throughout the novel and discuss what the author is attempting to tell the reader. Use supporting evidence and analysis.
Life-Sized Character Posters

Throughout your study of Night, you have carefully observed the characters' personalities and behavior. Now it is time to bring them to life by creating life-sized posters that reveal who and what these people are. This activity lets you highlight the essence of each character and demonstrate how well you understand their motivations.

Directions:
Your teacher assigns your small group (three students) a character.

First, trace the outline of one member of your group onto a large piece of butcher paper. This is the foundation for your poster. Decorate the body so that it reflects your character's physical attributes.

Then, brainstorm a list of adjectives that describes your character's personality. Add important events that involve your character. Discuss your character's role in the novel and what he represents. Find ways to display this information on your poster. Write words or attach images, etc. When someone looks at your finished work of art, he/she should gain a thorough understanding of the character.
